Contest for Western Championship Goes to L. D. S. U. Boys.

THE VISITORS FOUGHT HARD

L. D. S. U. Girls Defeat Ogden High School Team-Both Games Interesting and Snappy.

A magnificent audience packed the theater last night to witness the basketball contests between the Colorado team and the champion L. D. S. U., and the L. D. S. U. girls vs the Ogden High school girls.

Many of those present had never seen a basketball contest before, but they soon "got next" and before the games had got fairly started, enthusiasm ran riot. The audience cheered the visitors and home team alike, and each and every clever play brought forth stormy applause. Only one incident occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion. A crowd of youths in the first balcony took it into their heads that it would be exceedingly smart on their part to hiss the visitors on every attempt they made for a goal. They finally quieted down when informed that the home team might forfeit the contest on account of he conduct of the audience.

The game for the western championship was close and hard fought. The isitors displayed wonderful cleverness in passing the ball, and in that particular their work was superior to the home team. But in the matter of free throws the locals had all the better of it and hey played a cool determined game. Fouls were numerous on each side

The Coloradoans' chief offense was in talking back to the officials. The locals ppeared to an advantage in blocking brows for the baskets and securing ssession of the ball in the mix ups. mith for the L. D. S. U. played a endid game and was there with the ods in blocking and keeping the bail he summary of the game follows:

While headaches are varied in character and are produced by a variety of causes, the majority of victims suffer either from nervous or bilious head-ache. New York and pay off a few old scores It was a close call for the Day syndi-cate. The Astor estate in the Bronx looked good to John Kilfoyl and other American League men, but Henry Kil-iliea of Milwaukee made a piea for Manhattan Island, and the John B. All the "knocks" of the American invaders by local writers, who claimed Ban Johnson could not make good, have turned out to be boosts, as the games will be played in New York as per schedule.

So completely has the American League fulfilled its promise to locate in league territory that hereafter the writ-ers will have more respect for the words of Ban Johnson. With no more countries to conquer perhaps Johnson will lay off and take a rest, which he well

CHANCES GOOD FOR BASEBALL

Those Behind Scheme Determined To Make It Go.

NOW LOOKING FOR PLAYERS

Fans Are Anxious to Get a Team to Beat Ogden - More Money Coming In-

"We may not get a team of baseball players that will beat everything the kind in the country, but we will certainly have a good team and one which we feel sure will be able to cope successfully with the best article that the Ogden fans are able to hand out. The scheme may not be a success but we think it will be for we are starting out right and have plenty of money and more is coming in."

Thus spoke an ardent fan yesterday afternoon in speaking of the total baseball outlook for the coming summer For a long time after it was definitely known that Salt Lake and Ogden stood no chance to secure places in the Pacific Northwest league, the situation was rather dark, and scores of loca fans were bewailing the fact that there was little chance for their favorite sport this summer unless they went elsewhere for it. But a couple Weeks ago a movement was started stir up the baseballists of the tow and induce them to do something in material way for the benefit of th gaine. The result was that a meetir as held, a committe selected to soll subscriptions. A second meeting wa ed that there was enough money or and to start the game off, enthusiasa ran riot. Since that time money has en coming steadily in and those are interested in the matter declare unanimously that the project cannot fail. There will probably be a meeting come time next week with the Ogden fans at which a schedule will be drawn up and adopted. It is also quite likely that a substantial prize will be offered to the successful team, and everything possible will be done to keep the sport alive. The selection of Buck Weaver as monager of Salt Lake's team was a happy one and pleased local devotees of the game greatly. Buck may be a veteran at the business but he cer-calnly has plenty of ginger and knows how to keep a bunch of players togeth er and make them do the best there i ir them. That the baseball fever is in the air there can be no doubt. If there is any doubt one has but to read the following conversation between the

SALT LAKE STONE CUTTERS FIGHT THIS MACHINE.

Claim is That it is Going to Injure Their Business==-Being Set Up At the Federal Building --- Will Appeal to the Commercial Club to Head It Off.

THE GREAT PLANER THAT WILL DO THE WORK OF MANY MEN.

Above is a cut of the stone planer that has so stirred up the stone cutters of this city. It will handle a stone six feet eight inches wide, twelve feet long, and three feet one inch high, and the contractor says it will do the work of ten men. He denies that the use of the planer in Chicago was the means of a break from stone for fronts to terra cotta, or that it is ruining the stone cutter's trade, for terra cotta was put into use in Chicago before the stone planer was made use of there. The contractor claims that terra cotta was substituted for stone because the former is so much lighter than stone, and can be fastened easier to the steel skeletons of the great buildings. He claims that if the planer injured stone, eastern architects would soon put it out of commis-

Two members of the stone cutters' union of this city called at the "News" office yesterday, to further state their case in the matter of the planer. They were Messrs. Clark and Priday, who averred that if the planer was allowed to get into service here, every stone cutter might as well leave town, for it would mean the rulnation of their business. They claimed the statement that the planer took the "life" but of the stone to the depth of an inch, to be strictly true, and that stone fronts in Chicago are showing it today. That the machine will do its work beautifully, and with precision, ease, neatness and dispatch, the stone cutters do not deny. But the damage to the stone, they claim, more than offsets the gain. They remark that in the case of sawn stone, and in fact in hand cutting, there is a slight injury done the stone. But in this case, the depth affected is slight and is worn off in the subsequent rubbing and polishing. If this could be done to stone after the rock planer had gone over it, it would be all right. But the damage, they say, extends in one inch, so deep, that no amount of rubbing or polishing can remove all of the injured surfaces. The stone cutters say they will take the matter before the Commercial club, and government officials, and see if the planer may not be stayed off. At the same time, the Federal building contractors are setting the great machine up, and in a few days will have it running, driven by an
